MISSION STATEMENT

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has been built by the people of the State and has existed for two centuries as the nation's first state university. Through its excellent undergraduate programs, it has provided higher education to ten generations of students, many of whom have become leaders of the State and nation. Since the nineteenth century, it has offered distinguished graduate and professional programs.

The University is a research university. Fundamental to this designation is a faculty actively involved in research, scholarship, and creative work, whose teaching is transformed by discovery and whose service is informed by current knowledge.

The mission of the University is to serve all the people of the State, and indeed the nation, as a center for scholarship and creative endeavor. The University exists to teach students at all levels in an environment of research, free inquiry, and personal responsibility; to expand the body of knowledge; to improve the condition of human life through service and publication; and to enrich our culture.

To fulfill this mission, the University must:

- acquire, discover, preserve, synthesize, and transmit knowledge;
- provide high quality undergraduate instruction to students within a community engaged in original inquiry and creative expression, while committed to intellectual freedom, to personal integrity and justice, and to those values that foster enlightened leadership for the State and nation;
- provide graduate and professional programs of national distinction at the doctoral and other advanced levels to future generations of research scholars, educators, professionals, and informed citizens;
- extend knowledge-based services and other resources of the University to the citizens of North Carolina and their institutions to enhance the quality of life for all people in the State; and
- address, as appropriate, regional, national, and international needs.

This mission imposes special responsibilities upon the faculty, students, staff, administration, trustees, and other governance structures and constituencies of the University in their service and decision-making on behalf of the University.

General Information

Founding

The University of North Carolina opened its doors to students on January 15, 1795 as the first state university. New Hope Chapel (now Chapel Hill) was chosen for its central location as the site of the University. Hinton James, the first student to enroll, arrived in February 1795. By March 1 the University had 41 students and 2 professors. Seven students, including Hinton James, received their diplomas in 1798, becoming the first graduating class of the University. Authorized by the State Constitution in 1776, the University was chartered in 1789, and was the only public university in the nation to award degrees to students as early as the eighteenth century.

Women were first admitted to the University in 1897. However, admittance was permitted only for bona fide residents of Chapel Hill in graduate courses or as upper level transfers. The first five women to enroll were Mary Shackelford Nee McCrae, Cecye Roanne Dodd, Lulie Watkins, Sally Walker Stockard, and Dixie Lee Bryant. In 1898, Sally Walker Stockard received her bachelor's degree becoming the first woman graduate of the University. In 1917, Lillie Dale Whitaker, Mary Louise Stover, Mary Louisa Cobb, and Nell Abbie Patterson Pickard enrolled as the first female freshmen.

Organization

The University was consolidated in 1931 with the Women's College at Greensboro and North Carolina State College at Raleigh under a single Board of Trustees. In 1971 the General Assembly redefined the University of North Carolina System to include all 16 of the four-year public higher education institutions in the State. The Board of Governors was established as the governing body responsible for all basic policies for the University of North Carolina as a multi-institutional university.

UNC-Chapel Hill and the other institutions that comprise the UNC System each has its own separate administrative structure. The 16 constituent institutions, year they were founded, and their Chancellors are listed below.

Public Service at UNC-Chapel Hill

"The chief business of the people of North Carolina is the business of their university. It is her purpose . . . to study and envisage the whole and various life of the people and help build a nobler and fresher civilization in this ancient commonwealth."
Frank Porter Graham, UNC President, 1930-49

Consistent with the philosophy that the boundaries of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill are "coterminous" with those of the State, the commitment to public service is expressed through hundreds of outreach projects across the State. Public service activities performed by faculty, staff, and students at UNC have been conservatively estimated to reach more than 400,000 people each year. A sample of these varied activities are described below.

Action Research: Research directed toward better understanding vexing problems which affect the public and recommending possible solutions to policymakers.

- Researchers from the UNC Institute for Marine Sciences have been studying possible reasons for the declining oyster harvest on the North Carolina coast, experimenting with ways of improving the environmental conditions thought to contribute to the problem, and organizing a blue ribbon commission composed of fishermen, university scientists, and processors to shape policies and programs to encourage continued attention to the State's oyster industry.
- The School of Social Work is actively involved in several statewide projects that aim to coordinate and improve delivery of services to the poor, as well as to develop new ways of measuring long-term cost effectiveness of various interventions.

Action-Oriented Teaching: In the form of clinical education which directly benefits the public, practicum courses which require students to grapple with real-life social problems, and co-curricular activities which complement traditional coursework.

- UNC's Student Coalition for Action in Literacy Education (SCALE), a student-run organization, includes among its many outreach programs the Community Literacy Initiative, in which more than 450 youths and adults are learning to read at 17 sites across the state.
- Masters students from the Department of City and Regional Planning work with citizens, government officials, and business leaders to develop long-range economic development plans; students from the Master of Business Administration program provide free consultation to small business owners.

Training and Consulting Services: For state and local government officials and non-profit agency personnel in a variety of fields, including health, social services, and education.

- The Principals' Executive Program (PEP) has provided over 1,750 public school administrators from across the State with the management and leadership training needed to make major improvements in the curriculum, teaching, discipline, and facilities in their schools.
- Institute of Government faculty and staff counsel and train city and county managers from all parts of the State, as well as provide leadership in the development of a long-term quality improvement program for North Carolina state government.

Access to University Library Collections and Services: In such fields as health, law, science, music, and liberal arts.

- The North Carolina Collection, housed in Wilson Library on the UNC campus, provides citizens and researchers with access to hundreds of thousands of books, pamphlets, maps, newspapers, artifacts, pictures, and other audiovisual materials that represent the history and culture of the state of North Carolina.

General Information

Direct Service to Members of the Public with Limited Means: Through the efforts of UNC Hospitals, the Area Health Education Centers, student-organized volunteer services, and various research/service institutes on campus.

- For the past twenty-seven years, medical, dental, nursing, and public health students at UNC have operated a medical clinic offering free after-hours dental and medical care to approximately 750 residents of Orange County who might otherwise not be able to afford health care.
- The Mathematics and Science Education Network, housed in the UNC School of Education, provides Saturday and summertime enrichment activities across the state to encourage low-income and minority middle school and high school students to choose careers in science and medicine.

Community Education and Outreach: Interaction with members of the public to provide practical information on a variety of subjects.

- The North Carolina Breast Cancer Screening Project, sponsored by the UNC Lineberger Comprehensive Cancer Research Center, recruits and trains lay health advisors in rural communities to provide social support and health counseling to increase awareness about breast cancer.
- The Carolina Speakers, composed of 70 faculty from all parts of the UNC academic community, volunteered their time and expertise to provide a total of 309 speeches to an estimated 23,000 citizens across the state on topics as varied as music, genetics, literature, and southern politics.

In addition to the number of North Carolinians who are served annually by these activities, many more participate in continuing education programs offered on and off the UNC campus. These programs are designed to keep the State's professionals up-to-date in their chosen fields, and to provide formal and informal instruction to enrich the lives of the citizens of the State and facilitate "life-long learning." The following is a breakdown of these continuing education efforts provided by the University during the 1994-95 academic year. While it is not possible to quantify the many avenues of service across UNC, these statistics suggest the number of people directly served by this function of the University.

Figure 9 and Table 13 show comparative values in African-American retention and graduation rates for UNC-CH and 30 members of the Association of American Universities (AAU). Five-year graduation rates for UNC-CH African-American students have steadily improved between 1982 and 1989, with nearly sixty-five percent of the 1987 cohort graduating in five years. Since that time five-year graduation rates among African-American students at UNC-CH have declined slightly; however, they continue to be substantially higher than those of the comparison group. The five-year graduation rate for UNC-CH's 1989 African-American cohort is 17.9 percentage points higher than the comparison group. Retention rates are also higher.

Academic Affairs--At UNC this area is comprised of the College of Arts and Sciences (which includes the General College), the School of Business Administration, the School of Education, the School of Journalism and Mass Communication, the School of Law, the School of Information and Library Science, the School of Social Work, the Institute of Government, and the Division of Continuing Education.

Continuing Studies--The University's academic and administrative unit for part-time students. (Annual Report to the College of Arts and Sciences from Continuing Studies)

Continuing Education--The Division of Continuing Education enables part-time adult students to earn college credit through a number of delivery methods; offers non-credit personal and professional development conferences, courses, workshops, and seminars; and manages the William and Ida Friday Continuing Education Center. (Division of Continuing Education Annual Report, 1994-95)

Continuing Education Unit (CEU)--One CEU is defined as 10 hours of participation in an organized non-credit continuing education experience under responsible sponsorship, capable direction, and qualified instruction. (Continuing Education Unit (CEU) Guidelines, 1995)

EPA--Exempt from the State Personnel Act. Includes all employees (faculty/academics and non-faculty) on university payrolls that are not subject to the guidelines set forth by the State Personnel Act. (PDF Manual) EPA Non-Faculty includes (some, but not all) research personnel, non-teaching administrators and academic officers. Although they hold faculty rank, librarians are also included in this group.

Fiscal Year (FY)--An accounting period of 12 months which, at the state level, runs from July 1 through June 30.

Fixed-Term--Faculty appointment which is limited to a specified contract period, usually one to five years. These appointments are subject to termination upon their expirations. (Trustee Policies and Regulations, July 1, 1994)

FTE Enrollment--"Full-time equivalent" measure of student enrollment based on attempted resident credit hours. Based on this measure, a part-time student is represented as a fraction (.25, .50, or .75) of a full-time student. Among UNC institutions, an undergraduate course load of 12 or more resident hours constitutes full-time; for graduate and professional students, a course load of 9 or more resident hours constitutes full-time. The FTE of a full-time student is "1".

Gross Square Feet--Measure associated with the floor areas of entire exterior building structures. (Facilities Inventory and Utilization Study, 1994)

Health Affairs--At UNC this area is comprised of the Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, and Public Health.

Head Count Enrollment--Measure of student enrollment which (unlike FTE) does not adjust for part-time status. Any student, regardless of full-time/part-time status, is tallied as "1" in enrollment counts.

Independent Studies--Joint activities involving eight institutions of the University of North Carolina. These institutions offer college-level correspondence courses and other opportunities for individualized study for persons at a distance from the university campuses. (Independent Studies Catalog, 1996)

Median Salary--Value based on the mid-point or the fiftieth percentile of all salaries represented in a discrete category.

Non-Resident Alien--Foreign persons who are in the U.S. on a temporary basis and who do not have the right to remain indefinitely. This category is distinct from the resident-alien which refers to persons who are not citizens or nationals of the U.S., but who have been lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the U.S. and hold a "green card". Non-resident aliens are usually reported separately in enrollment tallies by ethnicity.
