MISSION STATEMENT

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has been built by the people of the State and has existed for two centuries as the nation's first state university. Through its excellent undergraduate programs, it has provided higher education to ten generations of students, many of whom have become leaders of the State and nation. Since the nineteenth century, it has offered distinguished graduate and professional programs.

The University is a research university. Fundamental to this designation is a faculty actively involved in research, scholarship, and creative work, whose teaching is transformed by discovery and whose service is informed by current knowledge.

The mission of the University is to serve all the people of the State, and indeed the nation, as a center for scholarship and creative endeavor. The University exists to teach students at all levels in an environment of research, free inquiry, and personal responsibility, to expand the body of knowledge; to improve the condition of human life through service and publication; and to enrich our culture.

To fulfill this mission, the University must:

- acquire, discover, preserve, synthesize, and transmit knowledge;
- provide high quality undergraduate instruction to students within a community engaged in original inquiry and creative expression, while committed to intellectual freedom, to personal integrity and justice, and to those values that foster enlightened leadership for the State and nation;
- provide graduate and professional programs of national distinction at the doctoral and other advanced levels to future generations of research scholars, educators, professionals, and informed citizens;
- extend knowledge-based services and other resources of the University to the citizens of North Carolina and their institutions to enhance the quality of life for all people in the State; and
- address, as appropriate, regional, national, and international needs.

This mission imposes special responsibilities upon the faculty, students, staff, administration, trustees, and other governance structures and constituencies of the University in their service and decision-making on behalf of the University.

General Information

Founding

The University of North Carolina opened its doors to students on January 15, 1795 as the first state university. New Hope Chapel (now Chapel Hill) was chosen for its central location as the site of the University. Hinton James, the first student to enroll, arrived in February 1795. By March 1 the University had 41 students and 2 professors. Seven students, including Hinton James, received their diplomas in 1798, becoming the first graduating class of the University. Authorized by the State Constitution in 1776, the University was chartered in 1789, and was the only public university in the nation to award degrees to students as early as the eighteenth century.

Women were first admitted to the University in 1897. However, admittance was permitted only for bona fide residents of Chapel Hill in graduate courses or as upper level transfers. The first five women to enroll were Mary Shackelford Nee McCrae, Cecye Roanne Dodd, Lulie Watkins, Sally Walker Stockard, and Dixie Lee Bryant. In 1898, Sally Walker Stockard received her bachelor's degree becoming the first woman graduate of the University. In 1917, Lillie Dale Whitaker, Mary Louise Stover, Mary Louisa Cobb, and Nell Abbie Patterson Pickard enrolled as the first female freshmen.

Organization

The University was consolidated in 1931 with the Women's College at Greensboro and North Carolina State College at Raleigh under a single Board of Trustees. In 1971 the General Assembly redefined the University of North Carolina System to include all 16 of the four-year public higher education institutions in the State. The Board of Governors was established as the governing body responsible for all basic policies for the University of North Carolina as a multi-institutional university.

UNC-Chapel Hill and the other institutions that comprise the UNC System each has its own separate administrative structure. The 16 constituent institutions, year they were founded, and their Chancellors are listed below.

General Information

One Hundred Years of Women at Carolina

Students

The University opened its doors to men in 1795, but it was not until 1897 that the University began admitting women, and then only in advanced classes. The first female students were Mary McRae, Lulie Watkins, Cecye Roanne Dodd, Dixie Lee Bryant, and Sallie Walker Stockard, with Sallie Stockard becoming the first woman to receive a degree from The University of North Carolina in 1898.

While women who lived in the Chapel Hill area were permitted to enroll as freshmen, it was University policy only to admit women as junior transfers until 1951, at which time the School of Nursing began accepting women as freshmen. However, it was not until 1963 that women were admitted to the fine arts program, and shortly thereafter women were permitted to enroll as freshmen in other programs as well. Originally women were subjected to a more rigorous academic standard than men because of the limited dormitory space allocated for women; however, this policy changed in 1972 with Title IX which mandated the elimination of sexual discrimination.

Although not admitted until 100 years after the University opened its doors, today women account for nearly 59% of the total student enrollment and are represented in every academic field. The University has an established Women's Studies Program offering interdisciplinary study through eighteen different departments enabling students to pursue either a major or a certificate in the Women's Studies program.

Faculty

The presence of female faculty members at Carolina has not increased as rapidly as the proportion of females in the student body. The first female to teach a class at Carolina was Emily M. Coe, who taught a course in the summer normal school in 1878. However, it was not until 1927 that Sallie B. Marks became the first woman to join the regular faculty as assistant professor of elementary education.

Much of the growth in the number of women faculty in the 50 years since the hiring of Professor Marks has been fairly recent. The percentage of women among faculty at all ranks doubled from 16% in 1977 to over 32% in 1997. During the same period, the percentage of female full professors on the faculty climbed from only 4% to over 16%. Currently, about 42% of all tenure-track faculty are female, which should bring about a noticeable increase in female presence in the senior faculty ranks in the next two decades as these women progress through the tenure and promotion system.

Public Service at UNC-Chapel Hill

In addition to teaching and research, the University of North Carolina views public service as an important component of its mission. That commitment is expressed through hundreds of outreach projects across the State. Public service activities performed by faculty, staff, and students at UNC have been conservatively estimated to reach more than 400,000 people each year. As a point of illustration, a service-learning program organized by, and comprised of undergraduate students at the University is profiled, and a description of other activities is provided.

a.p.p.l.e.s. (Assisting People to Plan Learning Experiences in Service)

Resulting from the initiative of a group of visionary undergraduate students, the a.p.p.l.e.s. Service-Learning Program was organized and implemented in 1991. While it continues to be student-led and student-run, a.p.p.l.e.s. is currently administered through the Office of the Provost. It has developed from a singular program structure called the Academic Year Program to a three-tiered structure (described below) which now also includes the Summer Internship Program, and the Alternative Spring Break Program.

The Academic Year Program requires students to volunteer three to five hours per week for ten weeks as part of their course work. Three times during the semester, students meet in reflection sessions, led by other students, to discuss the connections between course material and community service. Students keep a journal, write papers, and discuss service in class.

The Summer Internship Program is an eight-week, full-time internship in a nonprofit or government agency. Students receive a living stipend and three hours of credit. Students attend two reflection sessions and give a final presentation. In addition, faculty members require that students keep a journal, write two or more papers, and meet individually with them to discuss the student's internship.

The Alternative Spring Break Program is a one-credit, pass/fail course, taught in the spring semester. The students spend the first part of the semester reading, writing and preparing for an intense week of service during spring break. The second part of the course debriefs the experience. Students keep a journal, conduct reflection sessions every evening, and write several reflection papers about the service experience.

Other Initiatives

There are a number of courses offered at UNC-Chapel Hill other than those associated with a.p.p.l.e.s. which represent curriculum-based, service-learning classes. While a.p.p.l.e.s. courses are all administered under Academic Affairs, Health Affairs also administers a community-based education program. In addition, many faculty members encourage service-learning through their own activities.

The University's commitment to public service is further evidenced by the Public Service Roundtable which was established in 1994 to encourage service to the entire State and by the Chancellor's appointment of a special committee for service and service-learning. Also, the Campus Y, established in 1860, represents one of the University's oldest organizations whose function includes the promotion of volunteer work among students.

General Information

As indicated below, a significant number of North Carolinians participate in continuing education programs offered on and off the UNC campus. These programs are designed to keep the State's professionals up-to-date in their chosen fields, to allow part-time students to obtain college credit, and to provide formal and informal instruction to enrich the lives of the citizens of the State. The following is a breakdown of these continuing education efforts provided by the University during the 1996-97 academic year. While it is not possible to quantify the many avenues of service across UNC, these statistics suggest the number of people directly served by this function of the University.

Figure 9 and Table 13 show comparative values in African-American retention and graduation rates for UNC-CH and 33 members of the Association of American Universities (AAU). As of this publication, AAU data for Fall 1996 are unavailable. For all of the periods for which comparative data are shown, the five-year graduation rate for UNC-CH's African-American cohort has been substantially higher (by as many as 23 percentage points in 1987 and 1992) than the AAU comparative group. Retention rates are also higher. For the period shown, the five-year graduation rates among UNC-CH African-American students has generally increased. The five-year rate for the 1992 African-American cohort (62.2) is slightly lower than the highest average rate which was achieved one year earlier by the 1991 cohort (65.3).

A comparison among AAU public institutions of student costs associated with annual tuition and fees and room and board shows that in 1997-98, the combined rates for in-state undergraduates at UNC-Chapel Hill were the third lowest (slightly higher than Iowa State University and the University of Kansas). Looking at tuition and fees alone (without consideration of room and board costs) UNC-Chapel Hill again offered the third lowest in-state undergraduate rates (slightly higher than the University of Arizona and the University of Florida).

Comparison of Tuition and Required Fees

In comparison to average costs among AAU institutions, in-state tuition and fee rates at UNC-CH are substantially lower. For example, in 1997-98, UNC-Chapel Hill in-state rates ($2,224) were $1,798 less than the AAU in-state average ($4,022). For that same period out-of-state rates at UNC-CH ($11,210) were $357 less than the AAU average ($11,567), indicating that the difference in out-of-state rates is relatively slight.

Glossary

AAU--Association of American Universities - This organization includes the top 62 research universities in North America; membership is by invitation. Forty of the members participate voluntarily in an annual data exchange (AAUDE) which is the source of AAU data used in the Fact Book.

AAUP -- American Association of University Professors - This is a national organization concerned with issues related to the employment and professional lives of college and university faculty. The AAUP sponsors an annual survey of faculty salaries at over 2,200 postsecondary institutions, the results of which are published in the March-April issue of the organization's journal, Academe.

Academic Affairs--At UNC this area is comprised of the College of Arts and Sciences (which includes the General College), the School of Business Administration, the School of Education, the School of Journalism and Mass Communication, the School of Law, the School of Information and Library Science, the School of Social Work, the Institute of Government, and the Division of Continuing Education.

Carolina Courses Online--Undergraduate credit courses for individual distance education students using World Wide Web.

Continuing Education--The Division of Continuing Education enables part-time adult students to earn college credit through a number of delivery methods; offers non-credit personal and professional development conferences, courses, workshops, and seminars; and manages the William and Ida Friday Continuing Education Center. (Division of Continuing Education Annual Report, 1994-95)

Continuing Education Unit (CEU)--One CEU is defined as 10 hours of participation in an organized non-credit continuing education experience under responsible sponsorship, capable direction, and qualified instruction. (Continuing Education Unit (CEU) Guidelines, 1995)

Continuing Studies--The University's academic and administrative unit for part-time students. (Annual Report to the College of Arts and Sciences from Continuing Studies)

EPA--Exempt from the State Personnel Act. Includes all employees (faculty/academics and non-faculty) on university payrolls that are not subject to the guidelines set forth by the State Personnel Act. (PDF Manual) EPA Non-Faculty includes (some, but not all) research personnel, non-teaching administrators and academic officers. Although they hold faculty rank, librarians are also included in this group.

Fiscal Year (FY)--An accounting period of 12 months which, at the state level, runs from July 1 through June 30.

Fixed-Term--Faculty appointment which is limited to a specified contract period, usually one to five years. These appointments are subject to termination upon their expirations. (Trustee Policies and Regulations, July 1, 1994)

FTE Enrollment--"Full-time equivalent" measure of student enrollment based on attempted resident credit hours. Based on this measure, a part-time student is represented as a fraction (.25, .50, or .75) of a full-time student. Among UNC institutions, an undergraduate course load of 12 or more resident hours constitutes full-time; for graduate and professional students, a course load of 9 or more resident hours constitutes full-time. The FTE of a full-time student is "1".

Gross Square Feet--Measure associated with the floor areas of entire exterior building structures. (Facilities Inventory and Utilization Study, 1996)

Health Affairs--At UNC this area is comprised of the Schools of Dentistry, Medicine, Nursing, Pharmacy, and Public Health.

Head Count Enrollment--Measure of student enrollment which (unlike FTE) does not adjust for part-time status. Any student, regardless of full-time/part-time status, is tallied as "1" in enrollment counts.

Independent Studies--Joint activities involving eight institutions of the University of North Carolina. These institutions offer college-level correspondence courses and other opportunities for individualized study for persons at a distance from the university campuses. (Independent Studies Catalog, 1996)

This category is distinct from the resident-alien which refers to persons who are not citizens or nationals of the U.S., but who have been lawfully admitted for permanent residence in the U.S. and hold a "green card". Non-resident aliens are usually reported separately in enrollment tallies by ethnicity.

Off-Campus Credit Studies (OS)--Administers receipt-based courses and degree programs that are taught away from the campus or outside the conventional academic calendar. (Division of Continuing Education Annual Report, 1994-95)

Professional Students/Programs--Associated with UNC-CH degrees offered in four schools: Law (J.D.), Dentistry (D.D.S.), Medicine (M.D.), and Pharmacy (Pharm.D.).

Research I Institution--Classification which identifies the leading U.S. universities in terms of federal financial support (at least $40-million annually) and the number of doctoral degrees (50 or more annually). (Carnegie Council on Policy Studies in Higher Education). These institutions offer a full range of baccalaureate programs, are committed to doctoral-level education, and give high priority to research. (Chronicle of Higher Education, April 6, 1994)

SPA--Subject to the State Personnel Act. Includes all employees on university payrolls that are subject to the guidelines set forth by the State Personnel Act. (PDF Manual)

Tenure Track--Probationary-term faculty appointment conferred with the expectation that in normal course (pursuant to institutional policies and regulations) the individual will be eligible to receive permanent tenure. (The Code, August 1988) (Trustee Policies and Regulations Governing Academic Tenure) At UNC-CH this category includes some associate professors, as well as assistant professors and instructors.

Tenured--Permanent faculty appointment conferred in accordance with prescribed institutional policies and regulations that are intended to promote and protect the academic freedom of faculty. (The Code, August 1988) At UNC-CH this category includes (full) professor, associate professor, and in a few cases (fewer than 1%), assistant professor ranks.

Unclassified Students--Enrolled students who are not currently seeking a degree.
